ACCEPTABLE USE GUIDELINES:

The PRPMH Internet system is provided to subscribers for the normal and appropriate use of the internet. This includes email, browsing, downloading, video communication, social media and any other legal and appropriate use. This is a subscriber pay system and any attempts to share access to gain a pricing advantage are prohibited. The following guidelines are provided for your information:

Definition/Examples of Misuse

The following list, while not exhaustive, characterizes unacceptable behavior which may result in suspension of service:

- Using electronic mail, talk or other programs in a threatening or harassing manner.
- Attempts to gain unauthorized access to any protected information facility, whether successful or not. This includes running programs that attempt to calculate or guess passwords, or that are designed and crafted to trick other users into disclosing their passwords. It also includes electronic eavesdropping on communications facilities.
- Any violation of state or federal law.
- Any action that invades the privacy of individuals.
- Misrepresenting in any manner, your identity, your account or a computer in an email or other electronic communication.
- Sending mass mailings to individuals who have not expressly agreed to be contacted in this manner.
- Electronically posting any materials that violate existing laws or the Palm Resaca By Laws or Rules and Regulations.
- The inappropriate use of massive amounts of bandwidth

The acceptance of a subscription to the PRPMH System demonstrates your knowledge of the above guidelines.
